

Registry of Rooms For Young Girl Tenants

That there are more roomers than are dreamt of in the average household of those sets was brought out with some startling effect at a room registry conference attended by those interested in room service from a variety of angles at the Y. W. C. A. last week.

For instance, there are about 1000 registered girls who did not hear with distinct shock of surprise the opinion advanced at the conference that the housewife has a duty toward the girl occupying a room in the house and that the duty is not discharged when she sees that the room is kept clean and provided with fresh linen. It was charged that the housewife's failure to call and scold over the girl than the unorthodoxness of the maid and family the girl had secured returned to her parents.

No taxation towards the girl receiving a room was incensed in the room registry conference, for the girl was not arranged for her room in the house and provided with fresh linen. It was charged that the housewife could speak to the girl before a definite understanding as to the beginning.

Data on the selling points of a room was furnished from different sources by Fred Johnson, president of the Tulsa chamber of commerce, and Miss Martha Smith, superintendent of the high school. Miss Smith had loaned an informed questionnaire to the members which they considered most desirable and the ones which were most disliked. Many teachers ranked education as one of the three most important factors, 45 voted for separate clothes room, 45 for good furniture, 38 for good lighting, 28 for convenient location and 22 for sufficient heat. Unfavorable characteristics were found to be: 7 to be lack of privacy, 12 to be inconvenient location, 9 to be poor lighting, 9 to be noiseless, 8 to be inaccessibility to the bathroom and by 7 to be reservation of part of room or closets by landlady, and by 7 to be lack of insulation or clouds.

During the conference it was suggested that rooms might stand a better chance of being rented according to their conformity to certain points of ventilation, heating, lighting, etc. The comment was made that sometimes even the impersonal courtesy of a hotel keeper was absent in the landlady. Mrs. Hunt said that girls minded most the rooms being fair and approached access railroad tracks or unpaved streets.

Orpheum's Summer Season Starts Sunday With W. S. Hart

With the close of the presentights. This time at O'Malley, disguised as an outlaw, he makes his way fully to a town in Arizona of a girl and a boy. His scientific skill in prevailing summer house-seekers when the boy dangerously stakes him with a knife. How O'Malley whips the yellow out with one hand until he has for many reveals no one which holds the gun-totally.

Orpheum's Summer Season Starts Sunday With W. S. Hart

There are many situations in William S. Hart's Paramount picture, "O'Malley of the Mounted," which lift it out of the ordinary western picture class and place it in a category by itself. Some of the punch scenes are presented here with The Invaluable Law of the Canadian Royal Northwest Mounted Police—GET YOUR MAN! How O'Malley follows his quarry across the border line into the United States makes a great story.

O'Malley of the Mounted illustrates the striking original idea of making a boy to take punishment instead of inflicting it, as in the capture of the man he wants to punish.

How a girl and a boy save O'Malley from being hanged by the malefactors outside who think he has betrayed them.

Eva Novak as Rose, riding a fast horse, swings O'Malley from the ground up back of the saddle, and makes good a thrilling escape before the gunsmen, who were about to pull the trigger, which would swing O'Malley to eternity.

The terrific explosion when Bud with dynamite destroys the trail from the bandits' rendezvous, permitting his sister and O'Malley to get away.

O'Malley takes his enemies on the main roads by him like a whirlwind, settling with the ringers deserved death of the two highwaymen and the recovery of his own horses.

If you are an officer of the law, loved a girl and you discovered that her brother was also the man you were seeking to arrest for murder—but that he was justified—what would you do? Turn him over to his fate or let him go free?

YOU WILL DO WHAT O'MALLEY OF THE MOUNTED DID—RUN!

Another of William S. Hart's great ized room registry as outlined by Mr. Hunt. Room will be listed with their rental and statement of facilities and other points and it will be easy to locate the kind and price paying her and the housewife the trouble and time of calling on person. An offset is to be made, in short, to fit the girl to the room. The centralized room registry can be made a very worthwhile institution with the cooperation of the community, Mrs. Hunt said. In so doing, however, the roomer must not be given more room than she needs. The housewife will be asked to call and see the girl than the unorthodoxness of the maid and family the girl had secured returned to her parents.

Open New Bathing Beach.

Nearly 4000 persons attended the official opening of the Junior Beach at the new beach at the lake during the summer. Nearly half of the number were bathing in the 40th and 41st lake, which is a part of the 1600-acre park in memory of those who served their country in the world war. It is the first real bathing beach here as the Arkansas and Red River beaches are treacherous and cause many deaths every summer.

Cotton Prices to Go Lower.

Because of favorable conditions in the textile industry in England cotton prices are bound to go lower, according to a letter received here from W. M. Canterbury, Muskogee cotton man traveling abroad. Only half of the mills in England are operating and they operate but 24 hours a week, he says. Textile labor has been cut 20 per cent and manufacturers are considering another cut of 25 per cent. English spinners are paying less for cotton than prices are here now, he says.

Church Fund Is Raised.

Muskogee churches raised their part of the Methodist educational fund in one day's campaign, church leaders report. The funds were used to help the church in its work.
